Nurses hailed as cornerstones of the healthcare system

Nursing staff have been commended for their enduring role as the cornerstone of the public healthcare system.

This was during the commemoration of International Nurses Day held at Chris Hani Baragwanath Academic Hospital on Sunday (12 May) where the Minister of Health, Dr Joe Phaahla together with MEC for Health and Wellness, Nomantu Nkomo-Ralehoko and the national chairperson of Democratic Nursing Organisation of South Africa, Simon Hlungwani joined Gauteng nurses to mark the day.

With more than 250 nurses from Gauteng healthcare facilities in attendance, Minister Phaahla said that International Nurses Day remains a momentous occasion that recognises the pivotal role that nurses play in caring for the sick in our society.

"There are countless individuals who owe their recovery from disease and illness to nurses. Good nursing care is compassionate and offers solace to the grieving and offer hope in times of despair.

"Nurses play multiple roles and can be found in many aspects of health service including education, research, advocacy for patients' rights, innovation in care initiatives, and extensive involvement in shaping the future of healthcare," said the Minister.

This year's International Nurses Day is observed under the theme "Our Nurses. Our Future. The Economic Power of Care," which aims to reshape perceptions of nursing, demonstrating how strategic investments in nursing can bring considerable economic and societal benefits. MEC Nkomo-Ralehoko said that the resilience and compassionate care of nurses, especially in the bustling hospitals and community clinics in Gauteng underpin the commitment to ensure the provision of quality healthcare services in the province.

"Each one of you embody the highest ideals of healthcare, serving with a dedication that transcends the ordinary, turning routine tasks into extraordinary outcomes. Your work not only impacts individual lives but also molds the fabric of our healthcare system.

"We also recognise the transformative impact your dedication has on the delivery of healthcare throughout Gauteng. The care you provide does not just heal, it brings hope and dignity to those in their most vulnerable moments. Your role as caregivers places you at the heart of the patient experience, making you not just participants in medical processes but the very face of trust and safety in our healthcare system," said the MEC to nurses in attendance.

The Gauteng Department of Health (GDoH) will continue to advocate for better working conditions, supporting continuous education and ensuring that every nurse has access to necessary tools and opportunities of upskilling through the Gauteng College of Nursing (GCoN) which now offers postgraduate and specialisation qualifications to nurses.

- MEC Nkomo-Ralehoko

MEC for Health and Wellness, Nomantu Nkomo-Ralehoko on Monday, 06 May 2024 participated in the International Peace Summit which is aimed at raising global awareness, together with spiritual, social and political resolve to secure lasting world peace and to demonstrate tolerance, respect and understanding by acknowledging "unity in diversity".

In addition, Hlungwani said that in order to achieve universal health coverage, government needs to invest the nursing workforce to champion health promotion to prevent citizens from getting sick, which in itself is both an investment and a cost saving control measure for the healthcare system.

"Investing in nursing workforce will turn things around, the outcomes shall be economic growth, saved costs of healthcare and the wellbeing of citizens," said Hlungwani.

Every year, the GDoH trains a new pool of nurses through the GCoN and once they complete their qualifications, places them at various healthcare facilities in the province.

Digitisation of patient files set to positively impact on patient care

In an effort to achieve a paperless healthcare system, the Gauteng Department of Health (GDoH) has embarked on the digitisation of its paper-based patient records in public hospitals, with the project being piloted at Chris Hani Baragwanath Academic Hospital and Rahima Moosa Mother and Child Hospital.

The initiative is part of the GDoH's objective to expedite the adoption and proficient utilisation of eHealth system throughout the 37 public hospitals in the province, starting with the digitisation and back scanning of all patient records. A target has been set to digitise a minimum of 800 million patient records within the next 36 months, signifying the magnitude of impact expected from this initiative.

The eHealth system uses the power of cloud technology which will ensure efficiency and accuracy, offers secure storage of patient records. This centralised system is ready to simplify access and management of medical information, fostering a more simplified and effective healthcare system. MEC for Health and Wellness, Nomantu Nkomo-Ralehoko said that the implementation of the eHealth digitisation solution will yield substantial benefits to the Gauteng public healthcare system.

"Our hospitals stand to reduce operational costs associated with traditional paper-based record-keeping, eliminate time wasted on manual patient file searches and establish accurate records essential for legal and litigation purposes. The digitisation and back scanning of patient records will reinforce data security, ensuring seamless compliance with privacy and security regulations," said the MEC.

The focus of the digitisation project is on actioning and prioritising records preparation, cleaning and organisation across four primary sections in the hospitals, including maternity services, patient administration, mental health and chronic care management system.

- Patient administration - The eHealth system will ensure efficient patient registration, appointment scheduling and record management, consequently reducing waiting times and improving patient experience.
- Maternity Services - It will implement an integrated digital platform for maternity care, ensuring the tracking and management of prenatal and postnatal care, enhancing the safety and health of mothers and newborns.
- Chronic care management - Establish a digital chronic care management system that allows for effective tracking and monitoring of patients with chronic illnesses, enabling personalized care plans, and improving health outcomes.

- Mental Health Services: To create a digital framework for mental health services that provides comprehensive data management, facilitates patient monitoring and enhances the coordination of care among mental health professionals.

In addition to this, the eHealth digitisation project has seen the training and employment of 100 young people from local communities by the implementing agent. They are responsible for scanning and capturing of all paper-based patients files and will be employed for the duration of this project.

The digitisation of all paper-based patient files follows the implementation of the Health Information System (HIS) that will allow for one-patient-one-file. Already, the GDoH has successfully implemented three modules of the HIS, which encompass patient administration, billing, finance and revenue that have been seamlessly integrated into all 37 hospitals and 33 Community Health Centres, and the system is fully operational with the clinical module at Mamelodi Hospital and Charlotte Maxeke Johannesburg Academic Hospital.

Abattoirs in Katlehong hostel issued with PPE to promote food safety

Thobeka Makhubela

Abattoirs (slaughterhouses) in Buyafuthi Hostel in Katlehong, Ekurhuleni have been issued with personal protective equipment (PPE) as part of efforts to promote safer food handling and curb incidents of poisoning in communities.

This is an initiative by the Gauteng Department of Health (GDoH) together with its sister Department of Agriculture and Rural Development (GDARD). The PPE that was handed over to the small-scale slaughterhouses include long sleeves overalls and pants, rubber boots, aprons and protective gloves to use when processing meat.

Some of the recipients of the PPE include the Buyafuthi Butchery Meat and Chicken, as well as Funanani Kitchen Distribution. They also received essentials including cleaning solutions, dustbin buckets, knife sharpeners, knives and chopping boards.

Rachel Nditsheni, owner of Funanani Chicken Distribution said that she was grateful for the initiative by the provincial government as it has given her an opportunity to do business while ensuring compliance with food and meat safety standards.

"I would like to thank both departments for their assistance and ensuring that small businesses in townships are not only equipped with the knowledge on food safety, but with the necessary equipment to ensure that we indeed comply and sustain our businesses. The resources I have received will assist to ensure that my business performs well," said Nditsheni.

The issuing of these essential equipment to the abattoirs is part of the GDoH's continuous efforts to curb food safety incidents by ensuring that food handlers and vendors in townships, informal settlements and hostels are equipped with information on how to comply with food safety standards and have the correct equipment to maintain good hygiene.

Christina Mnisi, an Environmental Health Practitioner in the GDoH emphasised the importance of promoting awareness on food safety and hygiene to safeguard the health of customers. "In addition to the food inspections we conduct across various food retailers, we also ensure that we provide the necessary education to the owners and people working in these shops. We also educate communities about the dangers of food borne diseases and empower them with food safety tips such as food handling, preparation, storage, the importance of checking food expiry labels and hand washing before handling food," pointed out Mnisi.

The Deputy Director for Veterinary Public Health at GDARD, Dr Yemi Akerele said that government acknowledges the presence of the informal slaughterers within the food chain.

"They represent small and medium-sized enterprises, and we need to help them to eventually adhere to meat and food hygiene standards and establish reputable and registered butcheries and abattoirs within our communities," said Dr Akerele.

In addition, the GDoH rendered a basket of health services to the community of Buyafuthi Hostel which include comprehensive health screening, HIV and TB Testing Services, EPI (Child Immunisation, Vitamin A and deworming, family planning, oral health, Pap smear and PSA amongst others.

Progress in implementing recommendations of Health Ombud on Rahima Moosa Mother and Child Hospital

The Gauteng Department of Health (GDoH) is making good progress in implementing the recommendations of the Health Ombud's report on Rahima Moosa Mother and Child Hospital (RMMCH).

To date, nine recommendations have been finalised, while significant progress has been made in implementing an additional ten.

To fast-track the implementation of the various Health Ombud's recommendations a Project Manager was appointment and steering committees established.

As part of efforts to improve leadership and governance at the facility, Dr. Arthur Manning has been appointed as the Chief Executive Officer of RMMCH effective from 01 April 2024. Dr. Manning brings a wealth of experience needed to steady the ship and improve the service levels for the better. He has previously occupied senior managerial roles in both the public and private health sectors.

To strengthen oversight, the GDoH has established an Oversight Committee to conduct quarterly oversight visit to hospitals. The Office of the MEC for Health and Wellness will also continue to monitor the Hospital Board as per the recommendations. The department has been consistently keeping stakeholders such as the Public Protector and the South African Human Rights Commission updated on the progress being made.

Regarding the review of RMMCH staff establishment, the organogram of the hospital has been reviewed in accordance with the Department of Public Service and Administration directive. In addition, internal control measures have been introduced including the introduction of the required HR Plan to address capacity constraints and skill levels.

The Department has prioritised the infrastructure refurbishment to improve the overall conditions at RMMCH and create a safe and conducive environment for patients and staff. Several maintenance projects have been completed, including diverting the sewerage line to open sewerage channels, waterproofing the hospital roofs to reduce leakages, repairing hot water leaks and servicing calorifiers and ensuring functional generators.

Various wards and areas including the admissions area and paediatric OPD rooms have also undergone renovations and painting. The discharge lounge is also operational. The security system has been upgraded to ensure that additional cameras are installed, entrances and exits are lockable.

Efforts have been taken to expand the maternity capacity of the facility, the GDoH is awaiting approval to reclassify Discoverers Community Health Centre (CHC) into a District Hospital to alleviate the pressure on RMMCH. The process of converting the Florida Clinic into a CHC to accommodate Discoverer's Primary Health Care services is underway. The Westbury and Lenasia Clinics are also in the process of being converted for additional space.

Furthermore, the GDoH is also making progress in the implementation of the long-term recommendations highlighted in the report such as the process of gazetting of RMMCH as a Tertiary Hospital, availability of the 24-hour Laboratory and Blood Bank Services, and the establishment of an adult ICU at the facility.

The Department has prioritised the infrastructure refurbishment to improve the overall conditions at RMMCH and create a safe and conducive environment for patients and staff. Several maintenance projects have been completed, including diverting the sewerage line to open sewerage channels, waterproofing the hospital roofs to reduce leakages, repairing hot water leaks and servicing calorifiers and ensuring functional generators."

Additionally, funds have been allocated for the execution of the long-term renovations plan; the Gauteng Department of Infrastructure Development is currently working on the necessary designs for the project scheduled to commence in January 2025 with a twenty-four-month construction period.

The GDoH is committed to implement all the recommendations set out in the Health Ombud report to ensure that Rahima Moosa Mother and Child Hospital operates at its highest standards and delivers quality healthcare services to the community it serves.

Filling of vacant posts at Tembisa Hospital underway

In a bid to improve service delivery at Tembisa Provincial Tertiary Hospital (TPTH), the process to fill vacancies at the facility is underway with various positions which include nursing, medical, allied and support services already filled while others are at various stages of recruitment including post advertisement.

The MEC for Health and Wellness, Nomantu Nkomo-Ralehoko when responding to a question from the Provincial Legislature gave an assurance that the department was working with the TPTH to fast track the filling of the posts given the impact this has on the provision of efficient service to communities.

Staff turnover at the hospital was due to various reasons such as resignations due to better job offers, employees pursuing further studies, and health-related reasons.

The department is working around the clock to fill all vacant posts. Already, four medical specialists, two assistant nursing managers, a chief physiotherapist and four middle managers have been appointed. Interviews have been conducted for 12 cleaners and 16 administrative personnel, and three have already been appointed.

Out of the six vacant medical officer positions, five have been filled, while one position will be advertised. In addition, two operational manager positions for nursing have been successfully filled. To fast-track the recruitment process, runners-up from previous interviews for five nursing assistants and two staff nurse positions will be considered for appointments.

MEC Nkomo-Ralehoko also gave an assurance that the Gauteng Department of Health (GDoH) is also working to ensure that equipment shortages is addressed through the procurement of new machines and the maintenance of existing ones. The procurement of equipment such as a Pulmonary function unit, an Electroencephalogram (EEG) machine, and a Magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) machine has been completed and scheduled for delivery.

The GDoH has also received a Transport ventilator and the Fabian Therapy machine. In ensuring that there is continuity of care and service delivery is not compromised, the hospital always keeps extra theatre tables, anaesthetic machines, and ventilators on standby.

New uniform patient fees schedule now in effect

The Gauteng Department of Health (GDoH) has announced the new revised Uniform Patient Fees Schedule (UPFS) which have come into effect as of 1 May 2024.

Under the new fees tariffs slightly went up by 4.9%. The revised tariffs follow the public consultation process during the month of March whereby interested persons and stakeholders were given until the 29th of March 2024 to submit written comments and representations on the gazetted draft regulations relating to uniform patient fees payable for public hospitals, Emergency Medical Services, Mortuaries and Differentiated Amenities (Folateng Wards).

The revised fees will be applicable to all categories of patients, medical schemes, Road Accident Fund, Workman's Compensation, intergovernmental organs such as the South African Police Service (SAPS), non-subsidised categories of foreign nationals treated at State Health Facilities and differentiated amenities and all subsidised patients within the following categories except for those categories that are exempted or qualify for free services:

- H1 – individuals with an income of less than R70 000 per annum and households with an income less than R100 000 per annum.

- H2 – Individuals with an income less than R250 000 per annum and households with an income less than R350 000 per annum.
- H3 – Individuals with an income greater than or equal to R250 000 per annum and households with an income greater than or equal to R350 000 per annum.

In terms of the revised fees, an individual under H1 category who calls an ambulance requiring advanced life support will be charged R160.00 which is R5 more than what they are currently paying.

The same H1 category patient who accesses services at a provincial hospital and consults a specialist practitioner will be charged R95 per visit compared to R90 currently.

The Uniform Patient Fees Schedule billing system ensures a simplified charging mechanism for public hospitals, hospital mortuaries and ambulance services, and it provides a transparent and consistent fee structure for the treatment of patients, both as in-patients and out-patients.

This adjustment takes into account the cost-of-living adjustments and the inflation rate. The annual review of the patient fees is implemented in line with the requirements of Treasury Regulations 7.3.1 and the Public Finance Management Act No.1 of 1999. These regulations mandate the accounting officer of an institution to review all fees, charges, rates, scales, or tariffs that are not fixed by law and relate to revenue accruing to a revenue fund.

Patients accessing healthcare in Gauteng public hospitals who are eligible to pay for services are urged to comply with the revised Uniform Patient Fees Schedule. The public can download a comprehensive schedule of charges here: <http://surl.li/tmnfa Ends//>

Good Afternoon,

I am addressing this email to you to compliment Helen Joseph Hospital Polyclinic on the excellent service I received.

I sustained a fractured spine after a taxi almost hit me over when I was crossing the road 2 years ago. I have had extreme pain and inflammation ever since. I even had to change my eating habits and have lost 30kg in a year, however, my pain and inflammation suddenly worsened, to the extent that I literally couldn't stand or walk 5 steps due to the pain.

I am single, live alone, and my only child emigrated. I went to the General Practitioner, and she referred me to Helen Joseph Hospital. To be honest, I was dreading going to a Government Hospital because of all the bad publicity I've seen.

So, I am probably going to need hip surgery and I just wanted to let you all know that I was very grateful and impressed by the cleanliness, efficiency and friendliness of everyone there from beginning to end and so I'm not even nervous to go back in the morning and if they refer me to surgery, I know I'm in good hands. Being unemployed and on top of it being in constant pain makes my days very difficult and your hospital getting to the root of my pain so quickly is giving me light at the end of the tunnel. Hell, it's actually like a spotlight at the end of the tunnel.

Thank you all for that. It takes a lot of hard work and dedication to motivate an entire hospital of staff from the porters to the doctors to such an extent that they provide such efficient and competent services to the patients.

I really thought that I must share my experience with you all because people are so quick to complain these days and not quick enough to give compliments. If you would like to chat to me to assist in publicizing my experience there, I am open to that should you wish me to, it needs to be commended!

Kind regards
Mandy Hill
